Background

From May 21–23, 2025, the Eternal City welcomed faith-based leaders, social innovators, and impact investors to the inaugural SRG Faith and Impact Forum, held at Auditorium Antonianum in Rome.

With the theme “Faith and Impact: Building a Sustainable Future Together,” the Forum served as a catalyst for cross-sectoral dialogue on how faith communities can leverage their values, networks, and resources to drive systems-level social transformation.

The 4IP Group was honored to co-organize the forum alongside Spring Rain Global,¹ and to play a pivotal thought leadership role through three strategic interventions by its Managing Partner, Dr. Christian Kingombe.

Unlocking Capital: A Plenary on Innovative Financing Models

On Day 2 of the Forum, Dr. Christian Kingombe contributed a compelling presentation during the plenary session “Unlocking Capital: Innovative Financing Models for Social Impact,” moderated by Dr. Glenda Antonio. His talk titled “From Charity to Impact: The Rise of Faith-Based Capital Mobilization” outlined how faith-driven institutions can transform their philanthropic legacy into catalytic investment capital.

Dr. Kingombe introduced the concept of Faith-Based Impact Investing (FBII) and presented the 3i Sustainability Platform,² a digital ecosystem developed by 4IP Group to connect faith-aligned enterprises with capital, mentorship, and incubation partners.

He emphasized:

- The evolution from traditional charity models to structured impact investing grounded in moral values.
- The design of financing vehicles like the Invisible Heart Ventures Fund, a steward-owned, evergreen fund grounded in Catholic Social Teaching.
- A live case study on faith-aligned innovation projects from Africa and the Global South.

He closed the plenary with a call to action for faith institutions to mobilize their untapped capital, professionalize their engagement with enterprise development, and join global alliances like the Catholic Impact Investing Collaborative.

Workshop: Aligning Values with Financial Goals

In Breakout Session 1 (Room 1), Dr. Kingombe joined the panel “Impact Investing: Aligning Values with Financial Goals” moderated by Club of Rome’s Christopher Mbanefo. Here, he introduced the audience to the “Faith-Based Investment Spectrum,” mapping the journey from negative screening and ESG investing to deeply mission-aligned impact-first capital deployment.

² 3i Sustainability <https://tribe.3isustainability.com/posts/ip-group-faith-based-impact-investing>

His workshop outlined:

- Five Building Blocks of Faith-Based Impact Investing, including alignment, governance, measurement, partnership, and liquidity.
- The Invisible Heart Ventures Fund II as a blueprint for faith-driven regenerative capital models.
- Key barriers—including capacity gaps and institutional inertia—and bridges, such as digital tools and blended finance.

Dr. Kingombe concluded with five actionable steps faith communities can take immediately: formalize investment policies, map mission-aligned assets, engage with the 3i platform, co-invest through faith-aligned funds, and adopt the 7-Pillar Capacitation Model developed by Spring Rain Global.

The Invisible Heart Movement: A Faithful Impact Ecosystem

Across both interventions, Dr. Kingombe consistently positioned faith institutions as essential actors in global development finance. He invited forum participants to join what he termed “The Invisible Heart Movement”—a growing alliance of values-driven investors, entrepreneurs, and enablers committed to unlocking the social and spiritual potential of capital.

“Now is the time,” he stated, “for faith communities not just to speak about values, but to operationalize those values through purposeful finance and faithful stewardship.”
